The 1976 Mirror has attempted to "reach out" to capture the bicentennial year 1976. It is a time of reaching out for Happiness, Friendship, Understanding, Truth, Knowledge, Peace, and Love.

All of these qualities are found in life. Through happiness we find understanding. Understanding the needs, problems, and dreams of another person achieves friendship. To reach out for a strong and lasting friendship, one needs truth. The truth of accomplishment gives us the knowledge that we are always grasping for. Ideally with the knowledge we obtain, we can reach out for peace. Love can only be acquired through true interpeace, as well as true world peace. With these building blocks as a strong foundation we can use our ambitions to reach out for life.

The potential of this book may not be realized for a decade or more. When it is realized, it will reach out and reflect the happiness, understanding, knowledge, truth, love, friendship, peace, and life at Itawamba Junior College in 1976.

Speakers and Entertainers

Itawamba Junior College students and faculty had the opportunity of meeting nationally known political leaders as well as hearing outstanding entertainers during the school year.

Guests included U.S. Senator John Stennis and the then Governor-Elect Cliff Finch.

Among the individuals who entertained during activity periods were Greg Luna, who demonstrated karate; James Walters, who presented his skill as a hypnotist, Clebe McClarty, a Vietnam veteran who talked of his experiences as a Christian; and Alex Bevan, who sang and played the guitar.

Entertainment was provided regularly in the student center by Mike "Buford" Wardlaw, an IJC student who played his peers' favorite records.

During the annual Beauty Revue, the audience enjoyed music by Cathy Cooper and the Maskers Washboard Band, all of Mississippi University For Women. Miss Cooper, who has won several beauty titles, sang. The 22 juniors composing the Maskers played such "instruments" as spoons, buckets, tubs, washboards, rack bells and blocks.

Four bands played at student dances. Rabbit Branch entertained at the Back-to-School Dance, Homestead Act at Homecoming, Poo Nanney at the Thanksgiving Dance, and Chevy 6 at a midseason dance.

Speech and Drama Presents

"Inherit the Wind"

The Speech and Drama Department ran into some problems when it scheduled "Inherit the Wind," a play centered around the trial devoted to the legality of "Origin of the Species" by Charles Darwin.

The first problem arose when the play date had to be changed because of a conflict with the state championship football game. Another problem came the weekend before the play was to be held when Mark Berryhill, who was a male lead, was injured in a car wreck. Mike Mills had to step into his place at the last minute, as well as portray his part as the preacher.

Although the play had two setbacks, it was a major success.

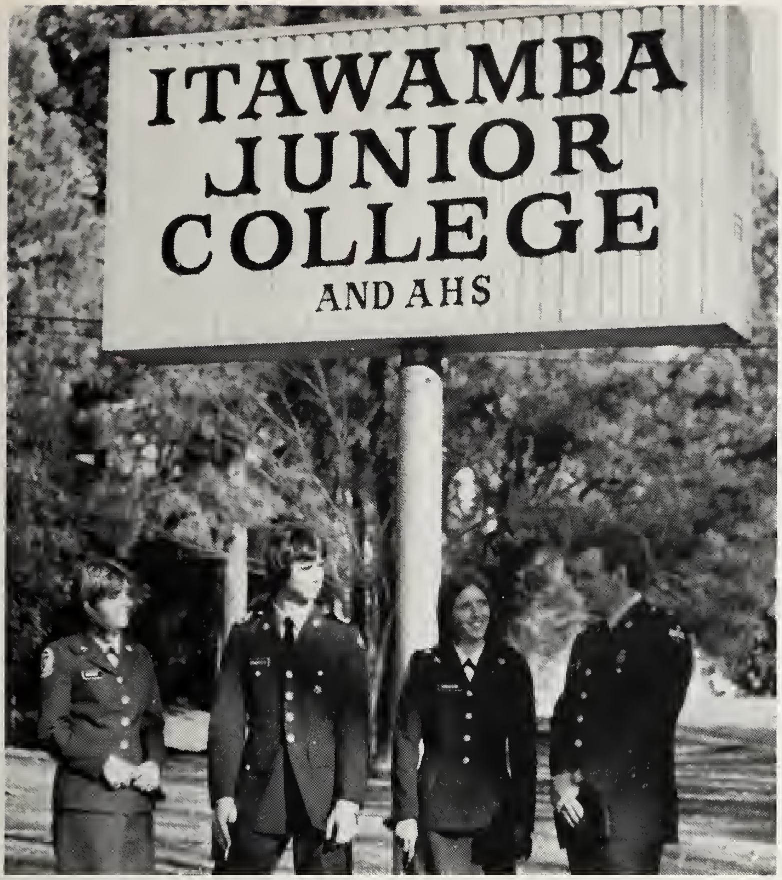
"The Chickasaw Nation"

The Speech and Drama Department presented a pageant to celebrate the Nation's Bicentennial. It was staged in the curve of the lake at Westwood Park and told the story of the Chickasaws who traveled east to live in Northeast Mississippi. It depicted a corn dance, deer dance, Indian Wedding, the arrival of Hernando DeSoto, Chief Tishomingo's forced signing of a treaty, and Chief Itawamba's defending his people from defeat by a neighboring tribe.

The Art Department and the Home Economics Department worked on costumes and setting.

Students who participated in the pageant include: Mark Berryhill, Ricky Williams, Paul Langley, Mike Mills, Tim Gillentine, Jimmy George, Carolyn Steele, Elaine Sullivan, Susan Umfress, Beth Moore, Nancy Cannon, Tony Crvich and Jean McCord. The directors were Mona Mills and John Cochran, and the narrator was Tom Campbell.



Army ROTC

Army Reserve Training Corps (ROTC) was offered for the first time at IJC during the 1975-76 school year. The 45 students who were enrolled in the program represented the largest first semester enrollment in North Mississippi Junior Colleges.

Captain Robert Brown, ROTC instructor, attributed the large initial enrollment to widespread publicity, total support from the IJC faculty and administration, and the fact that the military in general was becoming more acceptable again to the American people after the experience of Vietnam.

The ROTC courses were designed to produce male and female officers for the active Army, the Army Reserve and the National Guard.

Highlights during the year included the time the cadets received their uniforms, the day they took a helicopter flight over Itawamba County and the times the ROTC Color Guard presented the flag at football games.

1776–1976

Serving as flag girls for IJC were Joyce Tackett, Labrenda Mann, Sue Hall, Sheila Page, Brenda Taylor, Jan Burt, and Charlotte Sudduth.

IJC's marching band started the year off with the "bump." No, the year didn't begin chaotically; the bump was a popular dance step performed by the majorettes.

Marches and pop tunes were the types of music played by the band which was composed of 54 members dressed in blue and white.

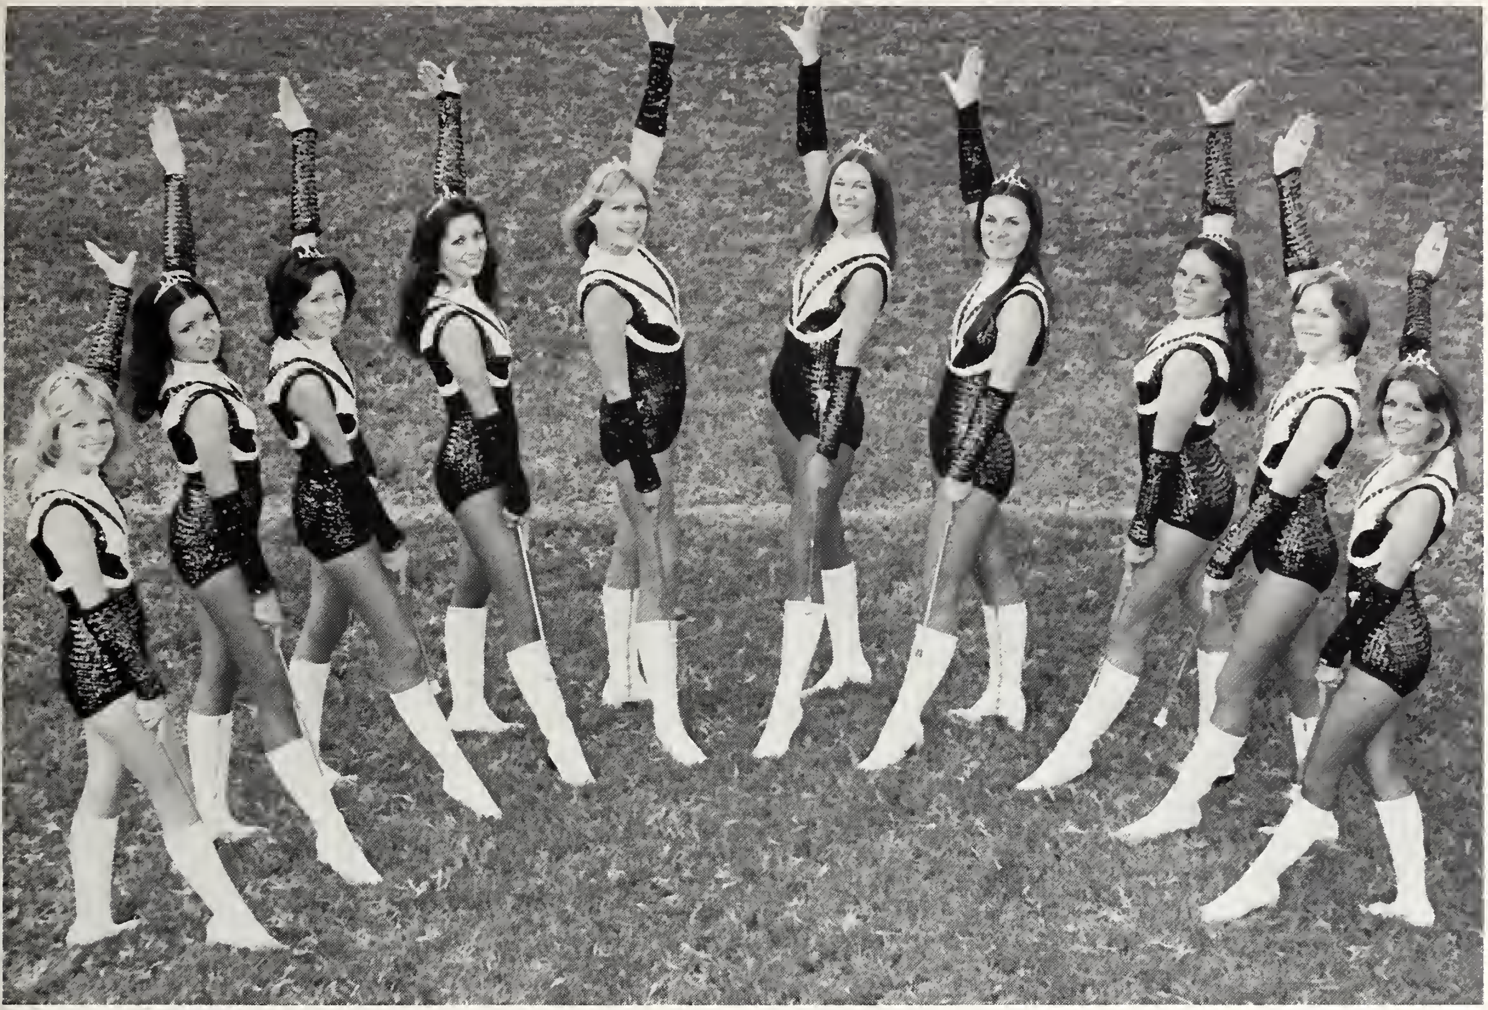
Probably the highlight of the year was a bicentennial display during the last home game. It featured an elaborate fireworks display, hundreds of helium-filled balloons and a giant birthday cake.

During the year the marching band played at the Governor's Inaugural Parade, the Mississippi-Alabama Fair and Dairy Show, numerous Christmas parades, at all home football games, at several out-of-town games, and at the Junior College All-Star Game.

The band was a major spirit booster by playing at all of the pep rallies.

In addition to the marching band, IJC was represented on various occasions by the concert and stage bands.

Mr. W. O. Ware, who was elected as vice-president of the Mississippi Junior College Band Association in 1975, directed the three bands.



IJC'S MARCHING BEAUTIES: Serving as majorettes for Itawamba Junior College were Alice Allen, Houston; Beth Moore, Fulton; Betty Clayton, Mantachie; Sheila Suggs, Fulton; Carol Keith, Tupelo; Susan Mcarty, Tupelo; Donna Summers, Mooreville; Jimmy Hudson, Pontotoc; Debbie Wall, Tupelo; and Michelle Dulaney, Mantachie.

Cheering Consumes Time and Energy

The 1975-76 school year was a hectic time for the cheerleaders. It began during the summer when they attended camp at St. Bernard College in Cullman, Alabama. They won second place over all competing squads. In the division competition, they won first in stunts and songs, first in scrapbook and second in chants and cheers.

During the year the cheerleaders served as hostesses for such activities as the IJC booth at the Mississippi-Alabama Fair and the "Welcome-Back to School Dance."

When the football team won the North-Half Championship, they surprised them with a basket of fruit. So that the football team could replay their victory after winning the State Championship game, the cheerleaders gave them an electric football game.

In addition to supporting the football team, the squad cheered at basketball games.

Mrs. Pattijo Spencer had a tremendous job as sponsor. She organized the activities of the cheerleaders and kept their spirits high.

W. O. Benjamin

Mr. Benjamin Says IJC's on the Move

"The Itawamba Junior College, like many other two-year institutions, is rapidly becoming a true community college serving the broad range of needs of the entire population.

"Since its first year of operation in 1948 the mission of the Itawamba Junior College has been broadened from the narrow scope of providing a baccalaureate program to providing programs which meet the post-secondary needs of the adult population.

"In its broader mission, the institution offers services that range from a seminar of a few hours for practicing nurses to a two-year associate of arts degree program or associate of applied science degree. The offerings range from a one clock hour workshop for elected public officials for no credit to a 75 clock hour course in calculus that awards five semester hours of credit.

"Students are enrolled at the Itawamba Junior College for reasons varying from the desire to develop leisure time activities in areas such as a two-year program such as drafting.

"The programs offered by the college are not limited to the Fulton and Tupelo campuses. Classes are conducted in industrial plants, banks, public school buildings and other places which are convenient to the people being served.

"Since its beginning the institution has increased its enrollment from 114 to a present enrollment in excess of 3,000. This figure represents students in academic, vocational, technical, and adult basis education programs.

"The Itawamba Junior College is truly on the move!"

Total Enrollment Increases Significantly

Enrollment for the 1975 fall semester at Itawamba Junior College, Fulton and Tupelo campuses, increased 20 per cent over the preceeding year. The most significant increase was in the number of full-time academic day students at the Fulton campus.

The final figures on enrollment showed the IJC, Fulton and Tupelo campuses as having a combined enrollment of 2,012 students. Of that number 846 were full-time academic day students on the Fulton campus.

Students on the Tupelo campus numbered 1,166 and were composed of 295 vocational day students, 68 vocational night students, 193 technical day students, 84 technical night students, and 526 night academic students.

President Benjamin attributed the significant increase in enrollment to the junior college's expanded curriculum and its increased emphasis on technical education.

Fulton Campus Offers Several New Courses

In order to provide the students with a wide variety of courses to choose from, Itawamba Junior College made several additions to its 1975-76 curriculum.

"Our idea is to open up the institution to the point where we have something to offer every person in our five-county area," said Dr. Edmonson. "We want the people to know that if we don't have a program or course they want, we will organize one. Whatever they want we will provide."

This emphasis on providing what the students want and need brought about the addition of the following programs: Cooperative Education, Directed Study, Army Reserved Officer Training Corps, Journalism, and Physical Education Transfer.

New courses were added in the following programs: Social Science, Home Economic, Law Enforcement Technology, Associate Degree Nursing, Forestry Technology, Art, Mathematics, Electronics Technology and Music.

Students Receive Personal Attention

In today's job market there is an increasing need for formal training past high school. To fill that need, IJC offers an increasing number of two-year technical and academic programs aimed at furthering each individual's abilities and interests.

One reason for the success IJC has achieved is the institution's attitude toward its students. Whether a student is enrolled in one of the two-year technical programs or plans to continue at a four-year university, each receives the personalized attention he needs at IJC. Faculty advisors take an interest in helping each student plan the program of study for which he is best suited.

In the early days of the two-year college, its main purpose was to offer the first two years of the baccalaureate degree. It was, then, a truncated version of a four-year college and hence the term "junior college." Students entered the junior college and enrolled in university parallel or "transfer" curricula. Now there is an increasingly heavy emphasis on the other components of the college — career programs, continuing education, and community services. Because of this, the institution is becoming more of a "community" college in the true sense of the phrase, rather than merely a "junior college." — Issues In Higher Education

Tupelo Campus Operates on Night, Day Schedule

Education is a day and night operation at the Tupelo Campus. Doors on the campus are opened in the morning at 8 o'clock and aren't closed again until over twelve hours later.

The campus serves a variety of individuals who range from those seeking a post-secondary degree to those wishing to learn how to read and write.

To serve these individuals with varying degrees of education, the Tupelo Campus offers courses in the following types of programs: technical, vocational, academic, continuing education and adult basic education.

During the 1975-76 school year Inhalation Therapy, Building Construction Technology, Civil Engineering and Newspaper Production Technician were added to the programs of study offered during the day.

New courses offered during the day were Quickhand Shorthand, Adolescent Psychology, Introduction to Literature and American History Part II.

The night schedule included courses in Electronics, English, General Education (technical), Home Economics, Health, Physical Education, Recreation, Journalism, Law Enforcement, Mathematics, Modern Foreign Language, Music, Secretarial Science, Science, Social Science and Speech.

Student practices techniques of welding.

Machine tool tech student sizes piece of metal.

Use of mathematics is necessary when drawing house plans.

Operation of the switchboard and dictaphone machine is taught in secretarial science program.

The instructor and students in Building Construction Technology scrutinize a model they built.

An Operating Room Technician student prepares equipment for surgery during a mock operation.

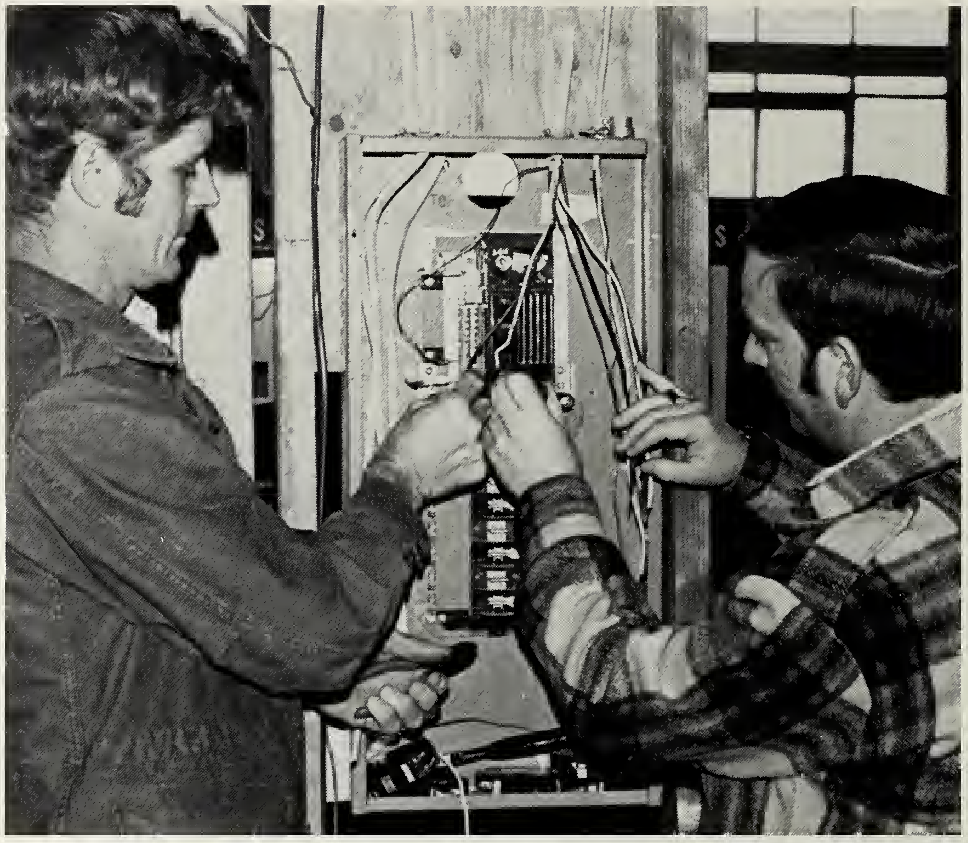
The horticulture instructor teaches others how to acquire a green thumb.

Maintaining a balanced structure is often difficult for beginning brick masonry students.

One project of carpentry students is the construction of a bell's frame for a church.

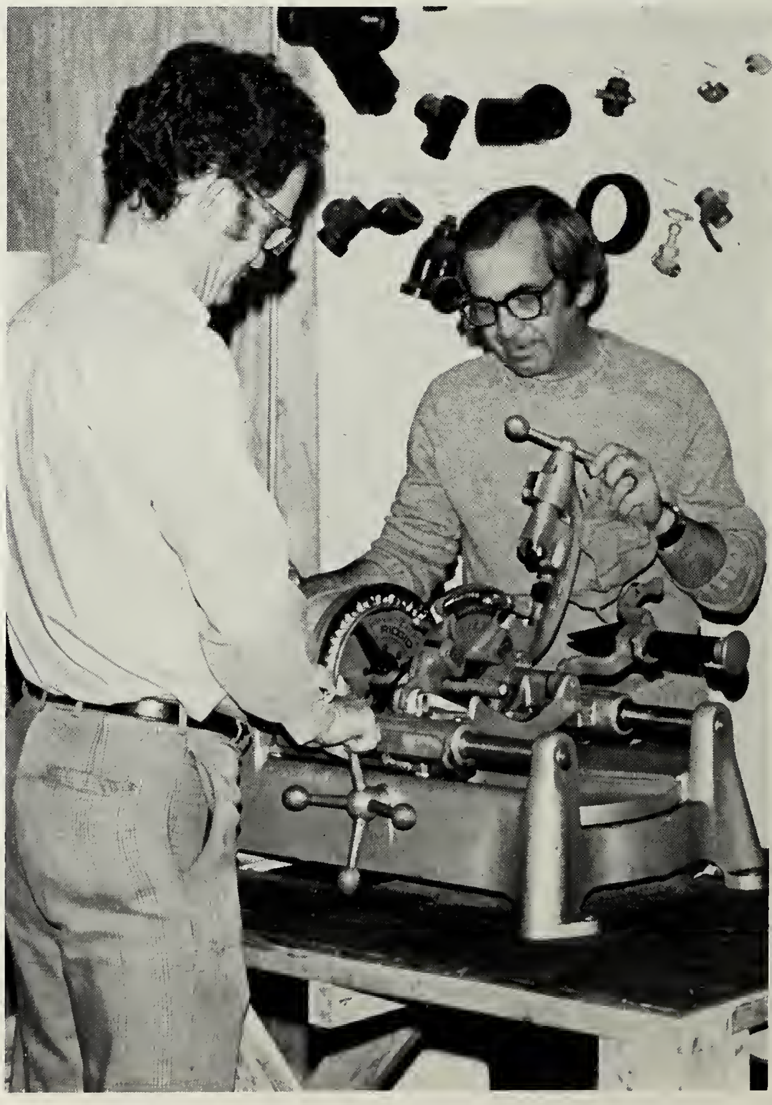
Industrial Maintenance students are instructed in the upkeep of factory machinery.

Checker/Cashier is one of many occupational skills taught to interested students.



A mock-up of regular household wiring aids students in learning Electrical Technology.

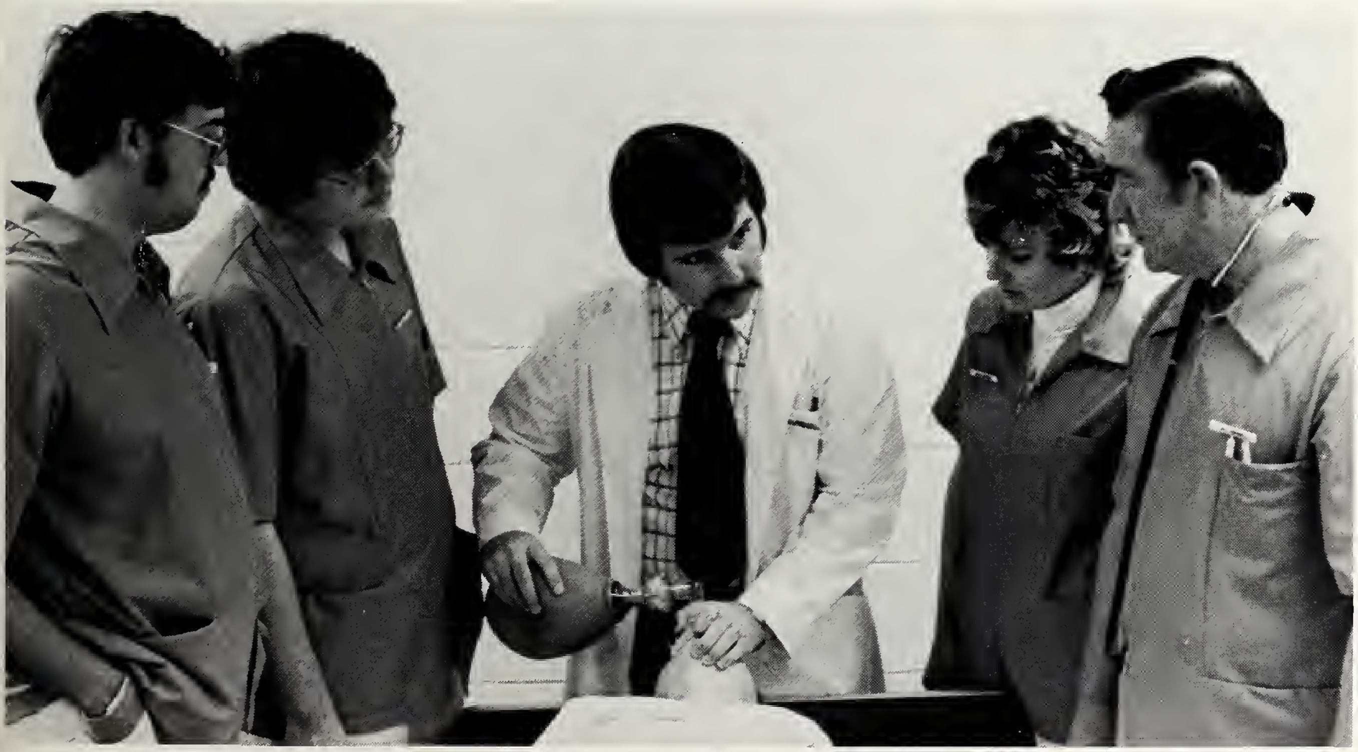
One of the easiest procedures Practical Nursing students learn is how to take a patient's temperature.



Proficiency in pipe cutting is required of Plumbing Technology students.

Transit instruments are used in Civil Engineering Technology to measure horizontal and vertical angles.

Upholstery students study fabrics, cutting, recovering, and structures.



Respiratory Therapy students are briefed on one of the many techniques used in artificial respiration.

Officials Plan Bright Future

Administrators and members of the Board of Trustees of Education aren't lucky enough to own real crystal balls, but they are nevertheless looking into the future.

Their substitutes for crystal balls are the best data and statistics they can find which will be used to predict the needs of Itawamba Junior College for the coming 15 years.

Armed with this information the officials have set out to design a comprehensive long-range plan to be used in constructing facilities that will meet these needs.

Several major steps were taken during the 1975-76 school year to make the plans a reality. The completion of the Learning Resource Center (LRC) on the Tupelo Campus in the fall of 1975 was the first step taken.

The LRC was made possible through CREATE, Inc., a non-profit foundation, and the Lee County Community Development Foundation. The center has been provided to the Tupelo Campus on a long-range agreement.

The LRC provides supportive instruction services and materials to the broad spectrum of students ranging from adult basic education students through the highly skilled technical education and college students.

In February of 1976, contracts were accepted for the construction of the Technical Building on the Tupelo Campus.

It will house shops for Civil Engineering Technology, Building Construction Technology, Industrial Maintenance Technology, drafting laboratories, classrooms, and a lecture demonstration room seating approximately 100 people.

The Technical Building will be built on the southside of the lake on the Tupelo Campus just west of the Health Occupations Building. A parking lot will also be constructed in connection with the building.

On the Fulton Campus contracts were let in March of 1976 for the construction of the Fine Arts Center to be built north of the football field on the site of Lee Hall dormitory and across from the present tennis courts. The dormitory was dismantled and five faculty houses were moved to make room for the facility.

Housed in the center will be the Speech and Drama Department, the Art Department and the Voice and Instrumental Music Departments. The center's plans call for two buildings: one that will include speech and drama classrooms, a lecture room seating approximately 100 and an auditorium seating approximately 500.

The other building has two wings, one for visual arts. The music wing will have music classrooms, a laboratory for electrical pianos, a listening room for students to hear records, practice rooms, a chorus room, a band room, and a small ensemble practice room.

The visual arts wing will have classrooms, a photography laboratory, a ceramics studio with a kiln, a sculpture studio, and a large open studio for printmaking, painting, and drawing.

The two wings and the speech and drama building will form a plaza area for student use. Low walls for seating and meticulous landscaping will make it a popular area in which students can study or relax.

Another area students will enjoy will be the balcony from the art studios. From the balcony students will have the opportunity of painting the beautiful bluff below.

The modern design of the Fine Arts Center will blend into the natural wooded area and will disturb the setting as little as possible.

After the Fine Arts Center has been completed the next project to be undertaken by IJC Officials will probably be the construction of new men's dormitory and a new women's dormitory. No specific architectural plans have been drawn up at present, but the dorms are expected to be constructed in the east and northeast areas of the campus in the vicinity of the present women's dorm area and north of where the lumber yard once was.

In the future a new football field, tennis courts, a baseball field and practice fields and a parking lot are designated in the long-range plans to be constructed in the flat area on the northside of the bluff on the northside of the campus.

According to the plans, a second classroom building will be constructed on the area now occupied by the Pontotoc and Itawamba Halls.

A third classroom building is expected to be constructed west of the present baseball field. A student union is designated to be built southwest of the present baseball field.

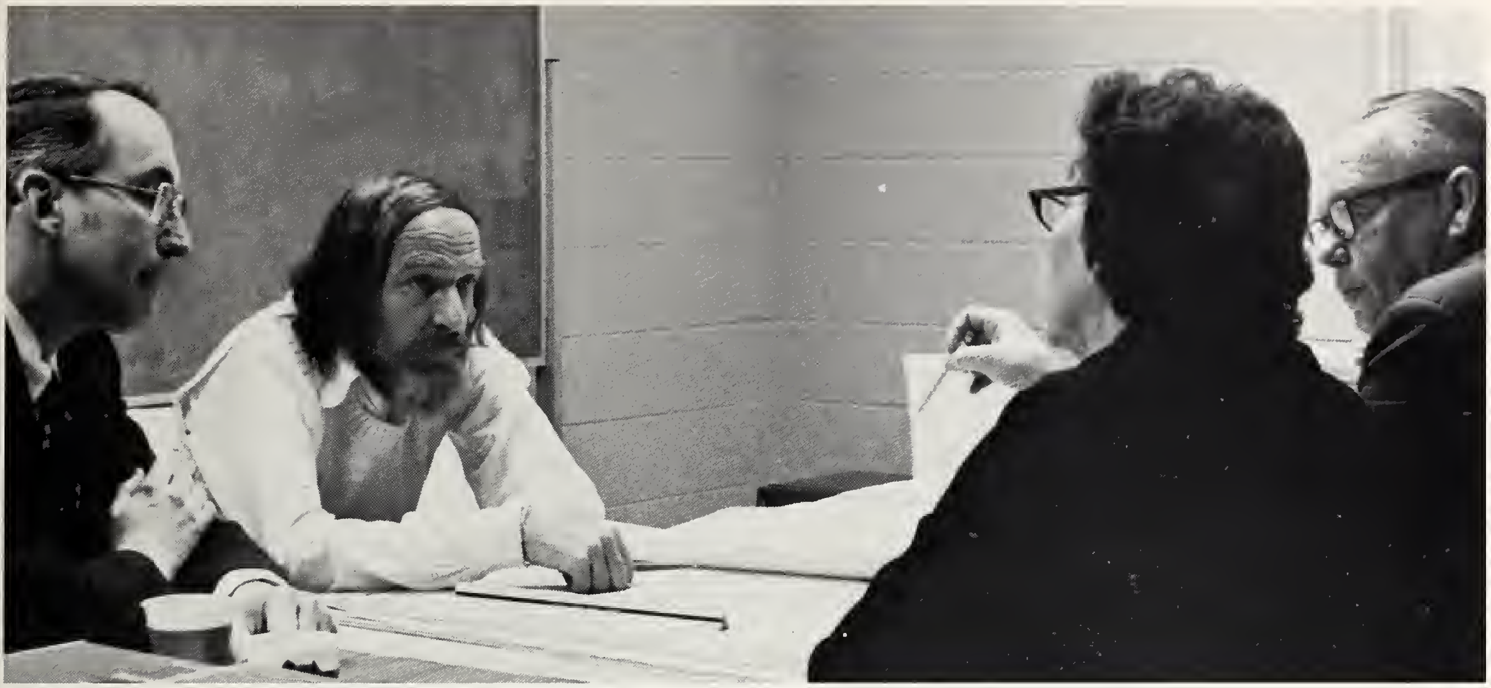
The area now occupied by the field is the projected site of a Multi-Purpose Building, which would be a combination gymnasium and physical education building. At the location of the present bus shop the long range plans call for the construction of parking lots, a maintenance shop and warehouses.

When the construction, which has been mentioned is completed the campus will be shaped in a quadrangle with an opening at the interior of the campus, which will allow only pedestrian traffic.

All present streets except the street now perpendicular to the president's home will be rerouted to accommodate the placement of the new buildings. This street will become the main entrance of the campus.

If crystal balls really allowed individuals to peer into the future there would be a large number of officials, personnel, and students peering into them to see IJC's bright future.

President W. O. Benjamin and Business Manager C. R. Nanney discuss financial aspects of the long-range building plans.



Each instructor whose courses will be taught in the proposed Fine Arts Center evaluated the architect's plans.

Archie Riley and drafting students constructed a life-like model of the Technical Building.

Bulldozers demolished the men's dorm to make room for the construction of the Fine Arts Center.

"Interested" and "Interesting" Describe Sophomores

The 1975-76 sophomore class attended Itawamba Junior College during the time United States citizens were discussing recessions, FBI investigations, trade with Russia, peace talks with China and the reduction of military weapons.

It was a fairly peaceful time following the end of the Vietnam War, the resignation of President Nixon and the decreased emphasis on power shortages.

When interviewed on events of national concern, sophomores had strong opinions. Holland Jordan, a pre-vet major and Bonnie Cruse, a psychology major, said they felt the FBI had been getting bad publicity from the news media. They also agreed that the organization was basically good and necessary for the society.

Bonnie and Holland thought trade with Russia should be held to a minimum, but Jackie Cruse, an engineering major said that the U.S. should stop trade with Russia because he felt that trade decreased the supply of American products and in turn increased American prices.

When asked their opinion of Gerald Ford's presidential record thus far, the three sophomores said they were disappointed in the job he had done. Bonnie said his biggest mistake was in disregarding the wishes of the people. Holland said he did think, however, that Mr. Ford was correct in sending the Marines after the American ship that was captured by Cambodia.

Although 40 per cent of the sophomores had part-time jobs, they managed to find time for hobbies as well as to attend school and keep abreast of political events. Some of their hobbies were basketball, baseball, ping-pong, tennis, swimming, hunting, and fishing. Other areas of enjoyment included music appreciation, sewing, craftwork, coin collecting and ventriloquism.

The five major fields of study the sophomores displayed interest in were Business, Physical Education, Nursing, Elementary Education, and Secretarial Science. But the students of this class weren't completely scholastically minded as was indicated by the fact that 16.9 per cent were actively involved in college athletics, and many more participated in intramural activities.

The 1975-76 sophomore class at Itawamba Junior College totaling 307 with 6.2 per cent attending from out-of-state, was one of the most interesting groups ever to attend IJC. Approximately 61 per cent transferred to a four year college with the majority going to Mississippi State University and the University of Mississippi.

Freshmen Feel Optimistic About Tenn-Tom Waterway

At a time when the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway looked almost like a reality, 1975-76 freshmen at IJC had optimistic opinions about it. Although the waterway had been planned for over one hundred years, the students felt its completion would be in the near future.

Several students interviewed felt the waterway would not only help the surrounding area but would also help IJC. Mike Murff summed up most students opinions when he said the waterway would bring in more students, increase the number of available jobs, and thereby increase industry and trade.

Although the freshman class was sure of the Tenn-Tom's completion, they were not so sure of the field of study in which they would complete their education. This was evidenced in the fact that so many students took general education courses. Business was the most popular major with nursing running a close second. Foreign language was the least selected major with only one freshman choosing it.

Of the 530 members of the freshman class, 312 were boys and 230 were girls. Twenty-four were part-time students. Scholarships were awarded to 109 individuals. Of these scholarships 72 were academic and the rest went to football and basketball players and cheerleaders.

During the 1975-76 school year, the most popular groups and singers were John Denver, Elton John, Barry Manilow, War, The Eagles, Three Dog Night and Frankie Vallie, many of whose songs could be heard blaring from the juke box in the student center.
